

PUMPING HOUSE

Wedding Brochure

ABOUT US

The Pumping House is a Grade II listed Victorian building set on six acres of grounds on the edge of the Sherwood Forest. Built in 1909, this is a rare venue with heritage that has been restored to meet contemporary tastes.

Two large event spaces, five themed rooms, ten guest bedrooms - all adaptable for your personal wedding day or celebration. Our experienced and friendly team understands that every wedding is unique. It's all in the little details. So they are on hand to make any bespoke tweaks you need for everything to go just so.

The Pumping House benefits from a variety of original features, such as a striking red brick frontage, a towering combustor chimney and full-length arched windows which let in an abundance of natural light. The central space is an impressive double-height Engine Hall, with space for seated diners, dancing and performances, while the licensed ceremony room on the upper floor has views over the forest. We provide stylish accommodation for wedding guests, too.

Our building is late licensed until 12.30am, and is a short drive from Sheffield, Nottingham, Lincoln and Mansfield. The Grade II listed Victorian house on the edge of a forest: where tradition meets modernity for a once-in-a-lifetime celebration, imagined by you.

OUR HISTORY

Founded in 1909, The Pumping House was originally called Boughton Pumping Station.

The main pump house was designed by W B Starr, an esteemed Victorian architect from Nottingham. It featured a huge brick chimney which is still a distinctive local landmark to this day – and a significant visual symbol of any wedding here. The pump house was commissioned by the Nottingham Corporation Water Department and was capable of pumping 20 million imperial gallons (91,000m³) per day through 15 ¾ miles of 30 inch pipe from the underground sandstone Aquifer.

Boughton Pumping Station later passed into the hands of Severn Trent Water and was officially made a Grade II listed building in 1974. This means it is “of special interest, warranting every effort to preserve it.” The pump house has had various uses since the mid 70s, and was painstakingly renovated in TK to transform it into a contemporary wedding venue which combines heritage and character with modern-day sophistication.
